Webmaster

Background

The new web site was developed using a current industry standard operating system called WordPress. WordPress is an open source Content Management System. Open source meaning the code is available to all developers and as such is subject to many new innovations, which in turn are developed into updates. Along with Wordpress additional Widgets (small module programs) are installed to add additional functionality to the web site. Because of the changes made to the programming, the WordPress systems itself is updates almost monthly. Each time causing many of the widgets to require updated. All updates have been complete on a regular basis as required. The Website is also backed up on a daily basis, in case any issues should arise.

In Service

The new web site went into service in January, 2018,
